A little bit about Fallow...

Fallow is a sweet but shy girl who came to the centre after she was found abandoned and left to fend for herself. Sadly she was not in very good condition but she is now on the mend and ready to find herself a loving new home. We are under the assumption that Fallow has had very little socialisation while she was very young due to how nervous she is. We have slowly been introducing her to the world and to new things and she is starting to understand the world is not that scary after all. Potential adopters will need to carry on with her training whilst not overwhelming her and going to fast. Fallow is bonding well with the staff here at the centre and is now starting to enjoy life, she is learning that people bring nice things and lots of love and a sense of security. Fallow will need adopters who are at home most of the time while she settles and builds a bond with her new family. She really has had a tough start to life and is now ready and deserves to be part of a loving family. She will make the most wonderful addition to the family. Fallow can be a little nervous around bigger and lively dogs so if she were to live with another dog, they would need to be nice and calm in nature. She will need an adult only home.
